Concept Question 11-1: Why is the maximum likelihood (MLE) classifier different from correlation?

The MLE classifier (Eq. (11.12)) is double the correlation minus the energy of the image being correlated with the observed image. This is better than correlation if the possible images all have different energies.