

Concept Question 12-3: A perceptron is a nonlinear function of a linear combination of several inputs. Why does it have this form?

It mimics the form of a neuron in a biological brain. The linear combination represents the strengths of connections between neurons, and the nonlinear function mimics a neuron firing. This was the original justification. Also, it works.