Concept Question 12-6: What does it mean to train a neural network?

To apply various training images, whose classes are known, and vary the weights in the neural network to minimize the overall mean-square error. Backpropagation is used to determine how the weights should be varied.