

Concept Question 3-2: Why do so many 1-D convolution properties generalize directly to 2-D?

A 2-D convolution is a 1-D convolution in the horizontal direction, followed by a 1-D convolution of the result in the vertical direction (or vice-versa). So a 2-D convolution consists of two 1-D convolutions.