Concept Question 4-4: Why use cubic interpolation, when quadratic interpolation produces smooth curves?

Cubic interpolation produces a signal that is twice differentiable. This is important if the interpolated signal is distance travelled (an odometer output) which must be twice differentiated to compute acceleration.